EUGLOH USZ Colleagues meet to close 2023 with a success!

As the end of the year was approaching, it was time to take everything we did in 2023 into account and to reflect on all that has happened lately. The USZ branch of the EUGLOH Alliance did that, too, and what is a better way to count our blessings of recent than to have some hot chocolate, Christmas cookies and to enjoy each other's company.

Prof. Dr. Márta Széll, Vice-Rector of the University of Szeged and Executive Board Member of the EUGLOH Alliance opened the session that all deans and faculty representatives were invited to. She said that we had an extremely busy year after the kick-off of EUGLOH 2.0 in the fall of 2022, but 2024 will hold even bigger challenges as the University of Szeged will host the Annual Summit in June.

After the welcome address of the Vice Rector and a few introductory words from Mónika Gortva-Kónya, the Institutional Manager of the University, the representatives of all Work Packages from 1 to 8 (Transnational Teaching & Learning, Research-based learning & practical learning, Employability & Lifelong learning, Campus Life, Service to Society, Focus Areas & External Strategy, Dissemination & Sustainability), along with, Florabelle Cabarrubias, President of the Student Board, and Anita Kéri, Communications Officer, presented their achievements, goals and ideas.

The official part of the event was followed by some Snack & Talk that provided a more informal space to the participants to share ideas and questions.

These semi-informal meetings play and will play a crucial role in the USZ EUGLOH strategy as they provide excellent opportunities for faculty staff to ask their questions and for EUGLOH staff to familiarize themselves with the problems and resources of the faculties. Mónika Gortva-Kónya, the Institutional Manager of USZ announced that next year, they will try to organize more semi-informal events and campaign, and that she and some members of the administrative staff will visit all 12 faculties before the Annual Summit in June.

Until then, the EUGLOH family wishes you a very Happy New Year!

Guest speaker invitation - For Researchers and Teachers

Below please find the letter from Luisa N. Borrell, DDS, PhD, Academic Coordinator of the Research Summer School

We cordially invite you to participate as a guest speaker in our upcoming one-week course on Social Epidemiology, scheduled at the University of Alcalá, Madrid, from June 17 to 21, 2024. As esteemed members of one of the university partners in the EUGLOH consortium, we value your institution's contributions in the field of social epidemiology and call for the expertise of your faculty members in the course. Their participation will make a significant contribution to the academic enrichment of this program.

The course aims to delve into the intricate and intertwined connections of the social, political, and commercial determinants with health outcomes in Europe and around the world. We are specifically interested in examining issues considered as determinants of health inequities/inequalities in your context, such as immigration and urban health, which are key social determinants of health in Spain. Covering fundamental concepts, methodologies, and practical applications in social epidemiology, we aim to provide participants with a holistic understanding of the subject.

We would be honoured to have the contribution of one of your faculty members with a 75-minute session, comprising a presentation and interactive Q&A, offering participants insights that bridge theoretical foundations with real-world applications.

Given the collaborative nature of our consortium, the participation of faculty members from your institution presents an excellent opportunity to foster academic collaboration across institutions. We are committed to facilitating their involvement, whether in person or virtually, and kindly request your confirmation of availability by January 8th, 2024. Their contribution to this course not only enhances its academic value but also strengthens the collaborative spirit of our consortium. We look forward to the possibility of having one of your faculty members as a guest speaker.

For any inquiries or additional information, please feel free to contact me via e-mail. You may register your interest by filling in this questionnaire.

Thank you for considering this invitation.

Staff week - Promoting inclusion and intercultural dialogue in international environments

Interested in inclusion and intercultural dialogue in Higher Education? Join the Alcalá staff week! Register until 15 January 2024!

EUGLOH is arranging a Staff Week addressing the specific needs of migrants, refugees, minority groups, and indigenous communities. The activity focuses on identifying best practice for university initiatives that (i) raise awareness about global health issues in these groups and (ii) enhance intercultural dialogue, that are tailored to suit the ever more diverse and multilingual nature of local and regional ecosystems.

A key feature of this activity is the 'train the trainer' approach, which includes active participation and co-design with representatives from the communities it aims to serve. This ensures that the training is inclusive, culturally sensitive, and directly addresses the specific needs of these communities. A detailed description of the Staff Week and its background ensues.

The main objectives of this activity are the presentation of flagships by partners, the identification of new initiatives that may be brought by the participants, the draft of a catalogue of best practice, the set-up of replication and extrapolation of flagships. The special needs of migrant/minority/indigenous communities will be addressed, and representatives of these communities will be involved in the co-designing process.

Structure and learning outcomes

The Staff Week will be held onsite at the University of Alcalá. Hybrid participation will be made possible to encourage the virtual presence of NGO, associations and other organisations which collaborate with partner universities. A virtual space will be opened during the whole month of April and beyond so that participants in the Staff Week can be in touch, engage in relevant discussion, and post contributions in different formats (links, texts, videos, etc.).

The following outcomes are aimed at:

- Identify relevant topics by mapping the needs of the target group.
- Collect best practice/initiatives within the different institutions.
- Contribute with knowledge and expertise in relation to the topics of WP6 and T6.3.
- Explore the replication and extrapolation of initiatives into our own contexts.
- Engage in intercultural dialogue to co-design contents.
- Join efforts to build an observatory and platform for the development of intercultural competencies in our institutions.

Expressing your interest is required

As minimum number of participants is required to allow carrying out the event. In this regard, it is important to express your interest in attending the event by using this link until 15 January 2024.
